From Trump's ear attack to Xi Jinping's stroke - Temple of Literature - World Wide Blog - World Wide Reader Network (computer version)

2024 is destined to be an extraordinary year. On July 13, the United States and the world ushered in breaking news. Trump, the former president and the next presidential candidate, was shot and attacked by a young gunman in his 20s during his momentum speech in Pennsylvania. His right ear was injured and his face was splashed with blood. The gunman was then shot dead by the SEC interceptor. According to the current investigation, the gunman used an AR-15 semi-automatic rifle to shoot at Trump's head from 300 feet (about 137 meters), but Trump suddenly turned his head, and the bullet only cut off a small part of his right ear, which is currently considered to be a personal hateful act. Supporters were shot behind the podium, and Trump's reaction after falling to the ground shocked the world in front of the TV screen. Under the national flag, his face was stained with blood, and he struggled to get up, still waving his fists with difficulty and shouting, "Fight, fight, fight..." until he was put off the podim by everyone.

After Trump was shot, there were all kinds of explanations, animations, or conspiracy theories, but there were many live videos to testify. The information was transparent, and the case reorganization process was also broadcast live to the world. Trump was attacked by his ears, and he was killed by an inch away, which was immediately called a "micle" by many people. Because Trump suddenly turned his head to avoid the bullets, and the chance of shooting the assassin in the distance was also very low after the blocker of the special service to avoid the obstacle, the chance of the two being combined may be only one in a million. Since the results of scientific judgment and analysis are incredible, and the chance of successfully avoiding death is extremely low, many people accept the fact that Trump's "life is great", which enhances the personality cult of some people's "chosen son". The incident caused a sharp turn in the positions of Wall Street, technology elites and middle-class voters, and Trump became a real star.

Under strong pressure, Kimberley Chettle, director of the Tek Service Bureau, was forced to testify in Congress. Although she refused to answer many questions, she had to resign in the end. Trump was attacked by the ear and almost died, which spread his heroic image all over the world, and also increased the sympathy and support of people who turned to him. It seems that Trump's popularity has skyrocketed. In the following days, Trump, who wore ear bandages, was nominated by the Republican Party and supported by his original opponent, J. D. Vance. The latter, as a candidate for vice president, has long been famous in the United States for his book <The Sadness of the Countryman>. The cheers at the Republican nomination meeting made Trump and most of his supporters believe that regaining the White House throne was no longer suspense.

Fate returns to fate, but the election is still controllable, and the "mircle" will not stop. On July 21, President Biden, who had always said he would run to the end, announced his withdrawal immediately after Trump was nominated by the Republican Party. With only more than 100 days left before the presidential election on November 5, the current president announced his withdrawal from the election and expressed his support for Vice President He Jinli to take over, writing an unprecedented page in the history of modern elections in the United States. Some people praise Biden for being arrogant and powerful for the party and the country. He will become a "great man in history" and "Biden will be a god". Biden said, "The great thing about America is that it is not the king and dictator who rules here, but the people. History is in your hands. Power is in your hands. The concept of America is in your hands." Unbelievably, He Jinli's support immediately caught up with Trump, and people seemed to have woken up from a bullet a few days ago. The poll suddenly did not distinguish between each other, and the amount of her donation immediately set an election record.

In just a few days, the U.S. political scene has changed with ups and downs, giving the world a vivid American constitutional education lesson. The current price is only a small quick flesh on Trump's right ear, the killed gunman and several dead and injured supporters. In general, American politics is relatively open and transparent. It is constrained by the media, parties and the people, and people have free room for discussion and choice. Most people firmly believe that the separation of powers in the United States, the four-level independent federal and local government framework and the constitution of "We the people" are strong evidence that this country is favored and blessed by God.

The evil of human nature is inevitable in any society. To be free, there must be an extraordinary price, especially the frequent shootings. Under the framework of the legal system, anything can be done, and conspiracy theories can prevail. But if politicians lie too much, they will lose their credibility. This is a country with all kinds of defects, like any country in history, but people basically do not hide the ugliness of society, do not require a perfect image, can use political party rotation to correct mistakes, and the votes respect the public opinion of the majority. The sanctity of the Constitution, the supervision of public opinion and the free flow of information have ensured that for nearly 250 years, although there has been noise, assassination... continuous, the national movement has flourished, and it has become one of the few developed countries in the world with a national and political state that has flourished for more than 200 years.

People all over the world are staring at the U.S. election, and the Chinese-Speaking world is certainly no exception, especially in the closed, closed and closed mainland areas. There is a special strange phenomenon this year, which has never been seen before. With high-tech communication measures, Chinese users can watch the big game within the two largest economies in the world, on both sides of the Pacific Ocean. Many Chinese people do not understand the republican system of the United States at all, and only cite the following obvious examples:

A. Knowing that there will be an assassination, why does Trump still want to participate in the event? Why is the security so lax?

B. Won't you be retaliated when you get off the stage? Who has the power to withdraw the current president?

C. Why can a black woman run for president? Isn't she a second-class and third-class citizen?

At the same time, China is experiencing a critical period of power struggle. After Xi Jinping arbitrarily amended the "Constitution" for three consecutive terms, he postponed the 20th "Third Plenary Session of the Central Committee", which should have been held more than half a year ago, and the date of this plenary session happened in parallel with the general election in the United States. The meeting was held in Beijing on July 15-18. Is this also a "miracle"?

Before that, a major incident occurred. Some people have revealed that mainland edible oil is shared or transported by other chemical, oil, weeding and other harmful substances transport trucks, and the operation has been in operation for about 20 years. The news came out, and the whole country was in an uproar! However, a bullet from Trump's ear attack saved the mainland media and senior officials, and then Biden announced his withdrawal from the election. Several incidents directly poked the hearts of the mainland people. I really can't think of it. Therefore, it's not a big deal to have a little kerosene appetite.

The ruling party in mainland China claims to be a "powerful country" with a "whell-process democracy" system and "pointing the direction for mankind". The contrast between the systems of the two major countries is inevitable. On July 13, Trump was shot, and Xi sent electricity to express his condolences as soon as possible. However, on July 19, General Secretary of Vietnam, Nguyen Phu Thong, died, but Xi did not send a condolence telegram, which was later sent in the name of the Communist Party of China. Then the news of Xi's stroke came out. Since then, all kinds of news have continued, and rumors have spread everywhere, true and false, false and true.

The general "mainstream" rumor is that he suddenly crooked his mouth or fell down when he was in an emergency. It is rumored that "when the shareholders' meeting was held, the second uncle collapsed" to avoid online censorship. What the insiders said was just a hint that the people could only use their black box politics as entertainment, and the meeting became a black meeting. If we don't tell the truth to the people, funny entertainment is bound to be popular on the Internet. Later, at the end of the meeting, he came out from the news broadcast, but it turned out that it was edited from the opening ceremony. If you release the picture of him suddenly falling, and then suddenly stand up and swing your fists: "We must liberate Taiwan and defeat the American reactionary faction and all the lackeys!" How can the Propaganda Department of the People's China still need to put up slogans all over the streets for more than ten years to create his "great leader" image?

In the face of the wave-like online discussion of "Xi's stroke" at home and abroad, the Communist Party of China authorities are seriously dealing with it. However, the result of the black box operation is getting darker and darker, and the credibility of the Communist Party of China is lost. Some people arranged for "Xi" to go to the Vietnamese Embassy to condolence. The careful netizens analyzed from the ears to the legs and feet, as well as the handwriting, asserting that there was a double or AI technology to cover up Xi's "strup". There are too many comments about it, so I won't repeat it.

But there is one piece of news worth referring to. At least for now, the logical loopholes are not obvious:

"Zhang Youxia's uprising at the Third Plenary Session of the Central China demanded the opening up of China and institutional reform! Xi Jinping was required to be hospitalized and recuperated, and the army was on strict alert when entering and out of the venue. The lockdown of the Tiananmen section in Beijing is at this time! Xi Jinping is no longer in 301 Hospital. He has been transferred to Xishan Underground Chief Medical Center. At present, he has not died yet. The Communist Party of China uses the double blinding method. There are many rumors and news. At the first plenary session of the Third Central China, Xi Jinping had a stroke, and the three plenary sessions were over abruptly. 2. After Xi's stroke, some generals led by Zhang Youxia took the opportunity to launch a coup at the venue and controlled Xi Jinping. 3. A large number of ambulances, fire trucks and engineering vehicles rushed to the location of the venue of the Third Plenary Session. 4. Some sensitive areas in Beijing have been blocked and martial law has been imposed. 5. The roads around Beijing are blocked by armored vehicles and armed soldiers. 6. More than 10,000 troops from the Western Theater entered Beijing and were intercepted by other troops. 7. Lieutenant General Guan Kai, the former deputy commander of Lanzhou Military Region, died suddenly in a car accident. 8. A large number of soldiers were killed in the western war zone. Putting these things together, we can outline a general scene, that is, the Third Plenary Session of the Central Committee was held, General Secretary Xi had a stroke, and Admiral Zhang Youxia, the highest military position and rank in the meeting, naturally became the highest military leader and was supported by other generals participating in the meeting. These generals took the opportunity to launch a coup to control Xi Jinping. Some officers and soldiers of the Central Security Bureau, who were loyal to Xi Jinping, resisted, and small-scale armed clashes broke out in the venue, and many military and police were killed. A large number of ambulances, fire trucks and engineering vehicles were urgently transferred to the venue to treat the injured, extinguish the fire and repair the damaged buildings and furniture. After hearing the news, some troops in the western war zone immediately sent troops to Beijing Qinwang to rescue them. The army was intercepted by other troops on the way, and armed clashes broke out, and some soldiers were killed and injured. After the soldiers rescued by King Qin were defeated, the general who led the troops into the capital was secretly executed, and the authorities claimed that he was killed in a car accident.

In fact, the Communist Party of China really wants to refute rumors, which is very simple. A video of Xi Jinping's last speech at the closing of the Third Plenary Session of the Central Party was released, and everything was resolved. However, there are more and more evidences of his loss of power: for example, the "reformer" was removed from the shelves, the media's hegemony disappeared, and the diplomatic pro-Russian policy suddenly changed, including the visit of the Ukrainian Foreign Minister to China and the cut-off of financial exchanges with Russia, Wang Huning visited Vietnam for him to participate in the funeral of Ruan Fuzhong, Zhao Ziyang and Zhang Jinfu and others in the media...

Seeing that Xi was "strugged" such a cowardly, netizens had mixed feelings. A "grass platform team" can only do the coquettish operation in the "garbish time of history". There are two pairs of pictures that reflect the reality of the United States and China: one is a desperate portrait, and the other is a desperate AI. Netizens are really talented. They make up pictures and stories. Let's continue to watch the cross-strait drama!
